

Tyler Paulsen
12/11/2015
csci420
Peer Review

My partner was Alexander Bobowski, and we did the project What's Cooking.

The way Alex and i worked was: I would do a quick rough draft of what needed to be done, and he would make it look nicer.

Alex always did what he said he would, but with that said, it wasn't always in a timely fashion. He added more depth to the papers, and made them a lot more interesting to read rather than what i had wrote.

I would work with Alex again. We didn't have to communicate too much in order to get our points across, and I liked that.